PROGRAMS & EVENTS

All Events Are Free Unless Otherwise Noted

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 2 P.M.

Opening Conversation: Cara and Diego Romero: Tales of Futures Past

Join us for what promises to be a captivating conversation with acclaimed photographer Cara Romero (Chemehuevi) and celebrated potter Diego Romero (Cochiti). Together, they will discuss the ways in which their work fuses elements of popular culture, ancestral traditions, and the supernatural to celebrate protagonists powered by their Indigeneity. Through their art, the Romeros harness the power of storytelling to illuminate the past, present, and future of Indigenous lifeways.

WEDNESDAYS, NOVEMBER 5 & 19, 11 A.M.

Collection Spotlight: Women Photographers

Online on Zoom

Join us for an informative presentation that explores the contributions of women in photography from the Museum's collection. Led by Museum Guide Sarah Geiger, this presentation will highlight photographers whose images feature individuals and celebrate the diverse voices, styles, and subjects they have captured. This program was made possible in part by the New Mexico Council on Photography Fund at the Santa Fe Community Foundation.

EVENTS AT CASA SAN YSIDRO

973 Old Church Road, Corrales, NM 87048 | 505-898-3915

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1-3 P.M.

Second Saturday: Friends of Valle de Oro - Backyard Refuge

Valle de Oro National Wildlife Refuge is a vibrant urban refuge that fosters deep community connections and environmental stewardship through innovative design and programs. The Friends of Valle de Oro help make the refuge a vital hub for environmental education, community activities, and events. Trails and other refuge features inspire regular visitors to love the outdoors and develop a sense of stewardship. Refuge amenities and activities foster a conservation ethic and inspire engagement in environmental issues at all levels.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 9:30 A.M. - 1:30 P.M.

Workshop: Blacksmith Basics

Registration required through UNM Continuing Education

The technique of heating metal and forging it into necessary implements and tools dates back over a thousand years. While most blacksmiths are self-taught, understanding the basic principles and techniques can speed up the learning process. Join us at Casa San Ysidro in Corrales for a hands-on opportunity to gain the fundamental knowledge necessary to begin making your own tools, knives, and decorative art.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1:30 - 3:00 P.M.

Heritage Spinning and Weaving

Museum Admission (register online)

This workshop features a demonstration and hands-on activity on how to create a typical Spanish colonial designed colcha sampler with a tapestry needle and colorful wool yarn.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 5 - 8 P.M.

Noche de Luces

Enjoy the festive atmosphere of the Village of Corrales welcoming the holiday season. This is the only opportunity to experience Casa San Ysidro at night by the glow of luminarias and holiday lights. Enjoy traditional music in the sala grande, a craft activity, and a collection of traditional New Mexican artifacts on display. Hot cider and cookies round out this family-oriented experience. Noche de Luces is one of several holiday events taking place in Corrales. Dress appropriately, these events take place primarily outdoors.

TUESDAYS - SATURDAYS: 10:30 A.M., NOON, & 1:30 P.M.

Tours of Casa San Ysidro

Purchase tickets online at albuquerquemuseum.org, no tours will be given in December or January.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2 P.M.

Lecture: Modern Art, Politics, and Music in Germany: Part 1

Included with admission

Compared to the art histories of other European countries, German art history is relatively unknown, although music by greats such as Bach, Beethoven, Wagner, Weil, and Richard Strauss is internationally renowned. In this illustrated lecture with examples of recorded music, Museum Director Andrew Connors will introduce the Modern era of German visual art, music, and film focusing on the 19th century through the 1920s.

THROUGH JANUARY 4, 2026

Modern Art and Politics in Germany 1910-1945: Masterworks from the Neue Nationalgalerie, Berlin

This exhibition traces the German experience in modern art from the early twentieth century avant-gardes resisting the conservative imperial government, through the great artistic diversity of the democratic Weimar Republic, to the reactions from the artistic community against the National Socialist (Nazi) dictatorship. Some artists adapted to the regime in power, some fled the country, and others boldly resisted, sometimes with disastrous consequences.

Modern Art and Politics in Germany tells the story of powerful works of art, many of which were on display in the 1937 exhibition Degenerate Art where the National Socialists condemned modern art and ideas or were created in response to that exhibition. Paintings and sculptures by major German artists including Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, George Grosz, Max Beckmann, Hannah Höch, and Paul Klee are juxtaposed with other experimental European artists of the period including Pablo Picasso, Wassily Kandinsky, Giorgio de Chirico, and Salvador Dalí. The exhibition is organized by the Neue Nationalgalerie-SMB and is accompanied by a catalog. This exhibition is supported by an indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

Cara and Diego Romero: Tales of Futures Past

Cara and Diego Romero: Tales of Futures Past includes the work of photographer Cara Romero (Chemehuevi) and potter Diego Romero (Cochiti Pueblo). Focusing on the artistic dialogue between these two leading artists, the exhibition explores themes concerning the complexities and the evolutionary nature of Indigenous identity. While they are husband and wife and maintain individual studio practices, their work shares a broader visual dialog. They fuse elements of popular culture, ancestral traditions, and the supernatural to portray protagonists powered by their Indigeneity as they, and the world, continue to change. Through their visionary works, the Romeros strive to establish agency through storytelling, and to address the past, the present, and the future of Indigenous lifeways. The exhibition examines rewriting historical narratives, the power of indigeneity, environmental racism, and ancestral evolution. It is organized by the Figge Art Museum. This project is made possible in part through the generous support of the Carl & Marilyn Thoma Foundation.

Beauty in the Breakdown

Albuquerque Museum Photo Archives houses hundreds of glass plate negatives, each one of them deteriorating due to the chemical process that created them. Beauty in the Breakdown uncovers the reality of preserving a collection in constant decline, while highlighting the beautiful and fascinating ways the deterioration process occurs. Efforts to conserve these delicate artifacts reveal both the challenges and the unexpected beauty in their fragile state.

THROUGH APRIL 5, 2026

Maps and Marginalia: Marking the Unknown

The Albuquerque Museum delves into its collection of maps from the early modern world (ca. 1500–1700) to uncover the stereotypes in the marginalia, or decorative illustrations on the map's borders. More than purely geographical documents, the maps showcase myths of 'primitive' Indigenous lives, reinforce Eurocentric views of superiority that justified colonialism, and indicate how little Europeans knew about the world it was exploring with imagined landforms and communities.

Nanibah Chacon: Erase the Horse...

Nanibah "Nani" Chacon is a Diné (Navajo) and Chicana artist, painter, and muralist whose personal philosophy is that art should be accessible and a meaningful catalyst for social change. Her work often centers Indigenous voices, matriarchal narratives, and community-based storytelling. Albuquerque Museum's Visiting Artist program is generously funded by the Frederick Hammersley Fund for the Arts at the Albuquerque Community Foundation.
